To : FAVA Executive Committee, Councilors and Organization Partners

Dear Councilors and Colleagues

It is great to announce that in Celebrating of World Antimicrobial Awareness Week 2020, FAVA collaborated with Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) organizing a competition on Housing Design for Small-scale Poultry Farming in Asia, with the theme of Biosecurity towards infection prevention and improved livelihoods. This activity is one of the continuous supports of FAO to the FAVA activities specially in the recognizing and appreciation to the person(s) or institution who give a great contribution to a good poultry farming practices by designing a poultry housing for small-scale farm. This good design will have a great impact to the Biosecurity and Antimicrobial Awareness in Asia Region.

We would like to ask you to distribute this information to your members and hoping they will participate in this award selection. The detail information of this award selection are attached. Since the period of selection is very short (the deadline submission of the application is November 13th). We do hope you will be actively shared and/or nominated the candidate(s).

For this purpose, please find the document(s) related to this competition.

Thanks you for your kind consideration and response.

Sincerely yours.

Dr. Heru Setijanto
